

ABSTRACT

The present invention features a method of approximating the relative contribution of melanin and/or deoxy-hemoglobin responsible for the perceived pigmentation of an area of skin.

5